L'homme qui répare les femmes

(in French with English subtitles)

Thierry Michel & Colette Braeckman, 2015

Duration : 113 minutes

Magritte Award 2016 Best Documentary Film

Dr. Mukwege was nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize for his commitment to protesting against the sexual violence perpetrated against women in Kivu, in the east of the Congo. He is known as "the man who repairs women". Over the past 16 years, he has treated over 40,000 patients, giving them the hope of rebuilding a life for themselves as women. In October 2012, Dr. Mukwege was the victim of a second attempt on his life and miraculously escaped death. After a short period of exile in Belgium, he returned to Bukavu after his patients bought him a plane ticket back. This film is the portrait of an outstanding man, a preacher, doctor, and family man, whose path and tireless struggle against barbarism is of interest to all those who fight to put an end to these war crimes.
